Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix on the 3rd of September, 2008. I always advise newcomers to look in to www.cuttingthroughthematrix.com web site where you can download lots of the previous talks that I've given on this very complex system we call reality. Also look in to www.alanwattsentientsentinel.eu for transcripts which you can download and print up. They're written in the various languages of Europe.

Talking about myself for a minute, I should remind people that YOU basically bring me TO you through your donations or through buying the books that I have. Remember, there's a new one out there on the web site ("Waiting for the Miracle..... The Symbiosis of Exoteric and Esoteric Societies and Their Unfaltering Goals Down through the Ages"). You can also donate through PayPal or any other means, in fact. That keeps me going. That makes sure that I keep coming back. I don't get paid for the shows I do. Now, the advertisers who advertise on these shows, that pays for the station and the engineers and so on to keep going. That pays their wage checks and so on. But I personally don't get anything. I've never asked money from any of the television or radio shows that I've done. I've never asked for money. So, you bring me to yourselves and I can keep going as long as you do so. Otherwise, I'll have to get another job or just go off and take one of the 3 professions I can do and toddle off somewhere, some nice hot country where there's less bugs than there are here, and enjoy myself while the whole world goes down the tubes. However, I don't want to do that because, after all, we are in this mess together and unfortunately, this mess is spreading all over the world. This is designed to be a global system, which is turning in to a global sewage system as far as I can see.

Tonight, I'm going to talk about the spraying in the skies that we see. At least some of us can see... those who have memory as well. It surprises people who wake up or who are awake, to find out how different they are from other people. There's a shock there. You see it isn't simply understanding what's happening and exposing the truth that matters, you have to break that impasse between your mind and their mind. Believe you me, those who are still under the spell of total conditioning are really under the spell. They can't understand where you're coming from. It shocks you to find out that these people have never looked up in their entire lives. That really is a scary thing because any creature who is not aware of its environment or changes in its environment, means that something has happened to its survival mechanisms.

Even in the country here, when you watch the foxes do their routes - they do their same routes every night and you'll find their footprints in the snow - if a tree falls, these characters will stay off to the side and you can see where they've been walking around this thing, observing it before they'll pass on. That's survival instinct. We don't have that now. Most people don't have that. We've been trained to believe that everything is being taken care of by a big Santa Claus at the top, who comes out of a special womb, who has nothing but your best interests at heart. THAT has been the TRICK from the dawn of ages. The only difference being, they perfected the system and they've also been attacking the public for generations, through inoculations and through MASSIVE, SCIENTIFICALLY induced propaganda and through the education system. They've actually made you come to BELIEVE that you are being well taken care of to keep you as perpetual children who are supposed to never be involved in the direction that your life or your world is going. Leave it to the experts, they say. These characters at the top have a BIG agenda that does NOT take your interest at heart. It's a very ominous sign, something wicked this way comes. I'll be back with more of some of this wickedness after this break.

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix. Just before the show tonight, I went out the back door to look at these wonderful Chemtrails - these are CHEMICAL trails - that were floating from the North going South so they'll get it eventually in New York or Buffalo area because the jet stream takes it down this way. They were like helixes, all twisted initially. Other ones were like candy floss, as they call it in Britain - or cotton candy, as they say in the United States - that someone had just stuck their fingers in and pulled across the sky in all these strands. Quite a fascinating sight to see, but these were laid by jets and believe you me, condensation trails never, ever looked like this in my entire life. And since water hasn't changed, then we can only presume that this is NOT water at all. It's chemicals, of course. We've been getting this for 10 years and the aircraft are getting lower now that they know that no one really looks up much. They're getting bold enough to come lower and really dose us with this stuff. Which is, by the way, killing off birds and other things too. I think it also kills a lot of the frogs.

Here's an article I'm going to read on this subject, for those who are skeptical. For those who really are skeptical, obviously, they never look up so I really think you should just forget these people, honestly. They're gone. They are gone. They won't believe it until the media tells them what they should be seeing for themselves. If the media does not mention it, they won't think about it. They TRULY do believe the media is an extension of their reasoning for themselves. They think that's why it's in business. Brzezinski talked about that and he was quite correct. People HAVE begun to believe the media is there to do their reasoning for them. This article here was published in 2 papers, I believe. One was for The Center for Research on Globalization and the other was Columbus Alive. The Columbus Alive one was the 24th of January, 2002 and the GlobalResearch.ca was the 6th of March, 2002 and it's about the chemtrails. It says

Chemtrails outlaw

The government says they don't exist, but Kucinich wants Congress to take action

by Bob Fittrakis

Columbus Alive, 24 January 2002

Centre for Research on Globalisation (CRG), globalresearch.ca, 6 March 2002

[emphasis added to article]

The debate surrounding the federal government's alleged weather modification experiments has landed in the U.S. Capitol, thanks to Cleveland Democrat Dennis Kucinich. Representative Kucinich introduced the Space Preservation Act of 2001 on October 2 last year, seeking a "permanent ban on [the] basing of weapons in space." (Alan: Now that's a dead one to start with because they've been doing weapons in space stuff since at least the 60s.)

The bill, HR 2977, specifically outlaws a variety of weapons detailed in the December 6, 2001, Columbus Alive article "Stormy Weather," which exposed allegations of secret government aerial spraying activities. Kucinich's bill explicitly outlaws "chemtrails."

Alive asked Kucinich why he would introduce a bill banning so-called chemtrails when the U.S. government routinely denies such things exist and the U.S. Air Force has routinely called chemtrail sightings "a hoax."

"The truth is there's an entire program in the Department of Defense, 'Vision for 2020,' that's developing these weapons," Kucinich responded. Kucinich says he plans to reintroduce a broader version of the bill later this month. "Plasma, electromagnetics, sonic or ultrasonic weapons [and] laser weapons systems" were among those banned by HR 2977.

Two scientists working at Wright Patterson Air Force Base informed Alive (A: This is the magazine.) of the ongoing secret experiments, one involving weather modification and the other involving the creation of an aerial antenna using a barium stearate chemical trail. (A: Now, we know the stuff - I've had it analyzed and so have others - there's barium IN these chemtrails that are coming down to the ground here.) The scientists referred to the work of legendary inventor Nikola Tesla. Before Ronald Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative (or "Star Wars"), there was Tesla's vision of high-tech space-based warfare and weather modification.

According to Tesla biographer Margaret Cheney, federal agents seized Tesla's papers after his death in 1943. "[At] least one set of Tesla's papers had reached Wright Field [now Wright Patterson Air Force Base]," Cheney wrote. The Aeronautic Systems Division at Wright Patterson admitted it had the Tesla papers but claim they were "destroyed."

However, Tesla's dream is embodied in a glossy brochure titled "Vision for 2020" released by the U.S. Space Command in 1998. The brochure states, "The emerging synergy of space superiority with land, sea and air superiority will lead to Full Spectrum Dominance." (A: FULL SPECTRUM DOMINANCE. You should look into the word 'spectrum' and see what they mean by that. It covers EVERYTHING. FULL SPECTRUM DOMINANCE.)

The Space Command spells out its purpose pretty plainly: "Dominating the space dimension of military operations (A: again...) to protect U.S. interests and investment." (A: Well, who owns the US? And who are they protecting? And who is the war against?... we may ask.)

There's nothing new here, for those who have been paying attention. In the 1970s, Jimmy Carter's National Security Advisor, Zbigniew Brzezinski, bluntly stated in his book Between Two Ages, "Technology will make available, to the leaders of major nations, techniques for conducting secret warfare, of which only a bare minimum of the security forces need to be appraised. [T]echniques of weather modification could be employed to produce prolonged periods of drought or storm." (A: What have we been having for the last few years? Especially since they started spraying 10 years ago?)

On January 4 this year, Canadian Professor Michel Chossudovsky, of the Center for Research on Globalization at the University of Ottawa, issued a report noting that weapons have the ability to trigger climate changes. "Both the Americans and the Russians have developed capabilities to manipulate the world's climate. In the U.S., the technology is being perfected under the High-frequency Active Aural Research Program (HAARP) as part of the Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI)," Chossudovsky wrote. "Recent scientific evidence suggests that HAARP is fully operational and has the ability of potentially triggering (A: This is in the TREATY, by the way, at the United Nations written in the 70s.) floods, droughts, hurricanes and earthquakes. From a military standpoint, HAARP is a weapon of mass destruction." (A: So much so, it said in the treaty at the United Nations, that it MADE ATOMIC WARFARE OBSOLETE.)

Doubters of the military's secret plans should refer to George and Meredith Friedman's The Future of War, Power, Technology and American World Dominance in the 21st Century. The Friedmans, government-touted "arms experts" and favorites of the military-industrial complex, assert that "The American experience of power will rest on the domination of space." (A: That's the air all around you, people.)

The U.S. Air Force giddily embraced the Friedmans' thesis in the 1996 report "New World Vistas: Air And Space Power For The 21st Century." The Air Force report notes, "In the next two decades, new technologies will allow the fielding of space-based weapons of devastating effectiveness to be used to deliver energy and mass as force projection in tactical and strategic conflict." (A: And by the way, they have tested this out on the whole continent.)

State University of New York Professor of Journalism Karl Grossman, writing in 1999, revealed how the mainstream corporate press virtually ignores the government's pronouncements while trade journals like Space News, Defense News, Aviation Week, Space Technology and Electronic Engineering Times routinely report on the military-industrial complex's high-tech breakthroughs.

As for chemtrail skeptics, they might want to consult Rutgers University Political Science Professor Leonard Cole's book Clouds of Secrecy: The Army's Germ Warfare Test Over Populated Areas. Chemtrail deniers are apparently happy with the thought that their beloved paternalistic government would engage in aerial spraying over densely populated areas.

U.S. Representative Marty Sabo, a Democrat from Minnesota, denounced "the secret Army program to spray Minneapolis and other cities with chemicals in the 1950s and '60s," the Minneapolis Star Tribune reported in September 1994. "The idea that the government would use its own citizens as guinea pigs is appalling, and I condemn it in the strongest possible terms," Sabo told a House subcommittee investigating the secret spraying, which used fluorescent tracers to mark wind patterns. (A: By the way, in 1948 they sprayed the whole of Saskatoon in Canada for about 2 weeks with flying fortresses in a deal made by the US and the Canadian government and they released various viruses on the whole population. Then with the socialist system of medical care that came in, they could trace people down through their lives to see when they died and what they died of.)

As for the Army, it argues that the secret Cold War-era spraying was not "human experimentation" since it didn't target any specific individuals (A: How clever. So lawyer-like, isn't it? They spray a whole mass of people... so we didn't target any specific individuals...) and the zinc cadmium sulfide (A: Cadmium sulfide is highly CARCINOGENIC. That's also in the stuff that they're dumping on us, by the way. They said it was harmless.) used was harmless. But the International Agency for Research on Cancer lists all cadmium compounds as known cancer-causing agents.

Former students of Clinton Elementary in south Minneapolis told an investigating panel from the National Research Council that the Army's secret chemical spraying adversely affected their health, according to the Star Tribune.

Skeptics who continue to insist the government would never be involved in secret aerial spraying, particularly in Ohio, may want to address their questions to the C-130 aircrews from the 910th Airlift Wing stationed at Youngstown's Air Reserve Station. (A: I'll continue with this article because it's VERY important, after this break.)

Hi folks. This is Alan Watt back Cutting Through The Matrix, trying to get through this WEB OF DECEIT and the web is all around us and all above us and they keep spraying the darned stuff on us. To continue with this article it says,

Skeptics who continue to insist the government would never be involved in secret aerial spraying, particularly in Ohio, may want to address their questions to the C-130 aircrews from the 910th Airlift Wing stationed at Youngstown's Air Reserve Station. In July 2000, an Air Force press release bragged, "Fifteen service members from military installations in Germany and England were at Ramstein Air Base, Germany, 8-12 May, learning how to use chemicals to destroy the enemy. The seven airmen and eight soldiers learned how to plan, execute and oversee the entire process of applying (A: What they called...) pesticides by air." The press release said the Youngstown air unit will only be used against "insects with their deadly diseases." (A: Interesting way to phrase it, 'insects with their deadly diseases'.)

Apparently insects take many forms. During the Seattle demonstrations against the World Trade Organization in November 1999, CNN reported that a military air unit with pathogen capacity to induce sickness in humans was deployed against the demonstrators.

So that's that article on the chemical spraying that's going on. I can not stress enough WE ARE BEING KILLED OFF. This barium and all the other chemicals that are coming down on us have many effects on the public. It also helps along the path of sterilization, by the way, which just happens to be one of the main GOALS of those who set up and run this beautiful new world order. You know, I wonder how far it has to go before people TRULY, TRULY start to understand that they're being done in? DONE IN. You know the cancer rate now is almost like every second person has cancer. Again, they're getting taught in medical school - as they come out of medical school - it's all quite natural. They don't know the cancer rates 50 years ago or 60 or 70 years ago, they're not taught that anymore. That's how easy it is to condition each generation of quacks that are put out into the workplace.

We're under a totalitarian system and THEY MEAN BUSINESS because this, remember, was an old agenda from Britain, from the days of John Dee who coined the term, 'The British Empire' [Alan's pronunciation: Bright-ish]. They set up a world of free trade, but a new system as well. It was at the same time that Bacon came out with his New Atlantis. A place in the West, which was America, obviously, which would bring the whole world under its new type of civilization. It would be run by a SECRET GOVERNMENT, a government who lived literally 3 miles deep within mountains or under the ground with laboratories using science to control everything... including, by the way, THE WEATHER. The book was written in the late 1500s and published in 1602. You couldn't dream this stuff up. Bacon even talked about the ability to create any kind of life form from scratch. Talking about dabbling with DNA here. This is when they had candles for light and the horse and buggy to pull you along the road.

Here's a report here. This falls in with the line of Britain because Britain is the PREMIERE for every... it's the one that leads the way for every other country in this new world order. Remember, the Royal Institute for International Affairs is only part of the system that came out of the Cecil Rhodes Foundation FOR world government. A world government where your bettors would rule over the lessers. I can't believe that it's happening at this speed in Britain. They must be so lethargic and worn down with the socialist system they've had since World War II. This is from SkyNews and it's from Monday, September the 1st, 2008.

New Subjects In School Shake-Up

9:40am UK, Monday September 01, 2008

[emphasis added to article]

Thousands of secondary school pupils are to tackle completely new subjects as they return for the new academic year.

A school pupil writes during a session curriculum shake up for secondary schools.

The new curriculum will see youngsters will learn about subjects such as credit card debt, climate change (A: Which is a political idea.) and tackling obesity. (A: Which is the outcome of your body being tampered with, with all the junk you're being forced to eat now that they've modified everything.)

The changes will also allow headteachers in England to schedule lessons in "economically useful languages" such as Mandarin and Urdu."

Traditional study topics such as Shakespeare and the second World War will remain.

But themes like sustainable development, (A: Here we go with the same Royal Institute of International Affairs / CFR agenda.) environmental change and global poverty. (A: Global poverty. Now, that's what communism was about, remember. That was the equalization of wealth across the planet.)

It will be given even greater focus to make peoples aware of the responsibilities as world citizens. (A: WORLD CITIZENS, eh? It's great how these superior ones make us all world citizens without asking us. Now, where does that come from? The Royal Institute of International Affairs and the Council on Foreign Relations. And Mr. Rockefeller hands out awards for global world citizens. It must all be a big coincidence, eh?)

Pupils age 11 to 14 will get entitlement to cook. They will be taught how to make simple, healthy meals from basic fresh ingredients helping to fight obesity. (A: This is from GMO food. Who's kidding who? Back with more after this break.)

Hi folks. I am Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix, trying to make people a little INDIGNANT about totalitarian system that's emerging ALL AROUND THEM and how they passively go along with it hoping to postpone the worst effects until the last minute. That's not how you do things. YOU GOT TO HIT THEM WHEN IT STARTS. You got to say NO. You go to start saying NO now before it gets any, any worse. All these little counsel things that are going around you, in your little areas, all these little laws they're passing, you'd better get there and tell them NO WAY, Jose. Okay. Or it's goners. It's all goners. We'll all be goners. Simple as that. You got to get involved and say NO. No is a nice little word. It's quite simple to say... NO. Don't explain yourself, just say NO. NO. NO. Because as a sovereign individual being, you have a right to do that. Yes or no. Quite simple. Learn to say NO. NO. I actually wonder if that's why parents were taught to tell their children, 'Don't say no to me'? It obviously is a natural thing to say. Perhaps if we grew up constantly saying NO, it would be a different world wouldn't it?

This is a continuation on how bad it is in Britain, who really is ahead of everyone else on this totalitarian regime that's going to become the new utopia for the elite. The Telegraph.co.uk on Sept the 2nd, 2008.

'Environmental volunteers' will be encouraged to spy on their neighbours

Councils are recruiting residents to report anyone who drops litter, fails to recycle their rubbish (A: That's their garbage.) properly, or who allows their dogs to foul the streets. (A: So here's the councils now, recruiting snitches.)

By Lucy Cockcroft

Published: 3:40AM BST 30 Aug 2008

Advertisements looking for people to sign up for the unpaid "environmental volunteer" jobs have been posted across the country in recent months. (A: Across the country, mind you. Using your tax money.)

Critics said the scheme was encouraging a Big Brother Society where friends and neighbors will be encouraged to "snoop" on one another.

The recruitment drive follows news that the home office is granting police powers (A: Police powers to council staff. These are these little prunes that meet on the golf course and do all the little charity stuff to get on the council board for their résumés. They're granting THEM police powers...) to council staff and security guards allowing them to hand out fines for offenses and ask for personal details.

Matthew Elliot, of the Taxpayers' Alliance, said, "Snooping on your neighbours to report recycling infringement sounds like something straight out of the East German's Stasi's copybook. (A: Well, that's because it is.)

"With Council tax so high, the last thing people want to pay for is an army of busybodies peeping through their net curtains at their neighbours as they put out their rubbish. (A: Well, it's time to buy slingshots isn't it?)

Eastleigh Council, in Hampshire, has said it wants residents to "monitor local environmental quality" to combat issues involving recycling and waste. (A: This is after they cut them back from garbage pickup every week to, I think, twice a month.)

The local authorities have already employed about a dozen people who answered and an advert in a council newsletter which said, "Volunteers will be involved in reporting issues in their area such as recycling, waste, fly-tipping (A: I'm not sure what that is, fly-tipping), graffiti, dog fouling and abandoned vehicles.

And the borough of Tower Hamlets, in East London, is advertising for similar roles within its environmental department, while other councils are expected to follow suit. (A: Now, how come they're expected to follow suit? See, they're all in cahoots together. They take their orders from a higher authority.)

The volunteers are not asked to directly spy on neighbours, but they're encouraged not to ignore tip-offs.

A spokesman for Tower Hamlets said: "These are all people who care about the environment and they will be ambassadors for their area." (A: I know what kind of turf I'd like to have them in... because they love green so much.)

The Local Government Association said: "Environmental volunteers care passionately about their area and want to protect it. (A: The little Nazis.)

"They're not snoopers. They will help Councils cut crime and make places cleaner, greener and safer." (A: It's time we bought a lot of green paint and paint these characters. They used to tar and feather them and put them on the lamp posts. So cover them in green... That's what I would do. Put a big sign there, 'no snoops wanted in this area'. Because if you let this go on, you know it's going on to the next step: to report your conversations and what topics you talk about and what you think about. THAT is what it's REALLY all about. You'd better hit that in the bud very quickly. No pun intended.)

We'll go to the callers now and we've got Rick from California. Are you there Rick?

Rick: Yeah. Can you hear me Alan?

Alan: I can. Go ahead.

Rick: Great. Some great topics tonight. There's 3 things I wanted to bring up to ask you. Unrelated. The first one is, last week you were talking about having an experience, like a paranormal type experience, and I wanted to ask you, is it necessary that one must go through this kind of experience in order to have woken up or is it okay just to be... or can one just be satisfied to just be ticked off at the...

Alan: You should never look for someone or some formula to wake up. Some people just suddenly, suddenly, it's like coming out of a coma. It just hits them suddenly. Other ones, it's been growing quietly along the way and it suddenly emerges until they can't ignore it anymore. They have to start speaking out. There's different ways to wake up. To be honest with you, most people will never wake up. That's what the elite have always known. Because most people are technically hypnotic. They sort of go in and out of hypnosis all day long. They can't tell fact from fiction any more. Their brain is so sluggish because of all the modified foods that they're eating and so on. Their sugar levels are all crazy today. Almost every other person's becoming diabetic BECAUSE of the stuff we're being fed. So, you have to understand not everyone is going to wake up but it doesn't take everyone to change the course of this incoming comet. IT DOESN'T TAKE MANY PEOPLE, REALLY, TO SAY THE RIGHT THINGS AT THE RIGHT TIME AND TO START DEMANDING TO CHANGE THE DIRECTION. The key is not to fall into the arguments which are laid out for you to fall in to.

Rick: I see. So it doesn't have to be a paranormal experience then?

Alan: You don't have to. Technically too, some people can have some experience which gives them an EMPATHY FOR OTHERS. Some will go through that. It forces them to look at themselves because when you look at all the evil in the world - and if it's caused by humans maybe higher up than we are - we all have that capability somewhere, some degree, some level. Maybe not to the same extent as these psychopaths do, but we all have it in us. Once you reflect on yourself, you start to understand things more but you also start to have empathy for the effects of all this evil upon the people around you.

Rick: I see.

Alan: There is a saying, 'there but for grace go you or I' and it's very true. We could all be at the bottom of the heap, blown up like balloons on the junk that we eat and totally out of the picture.

Rick: I've experienced that. I've felt that... what you're talking about. The next question is, if you have a murder weapon... like we know that a gun could shoot somebody and kill somebody but we don't know if it was used in this particular instance or crime and that's where courts come in and stuff. So in the case of things like Katrina or droughts in Africa, we know these weather weapons can be used to do these things and I have a suspicion they were.

Alan: They are being used.

Rick: How do we prove that it was, when someone says where's your proof? What do we say or how do we...

Alan: I don't even bother with those people because those people haven't even looked at the skies, obviously, for years.

Rick: When you speak out against the law... If I were to do a demonstration or write to a congressman and they were to say where's your... they would just laugh at me... How would I...

Alan: You got to understand, your Congress are useless for you. The politicians are all bought and paid for. They will NOT go near this topic. Now, it happened in Canada. One did. She was the MP for Sudbury. Don Scott who had got her filled in on the chemtrails, she went to the Parliament in Ottawa and the Minister for the Department of Defence stood up and said to her, 'We don't have to answer your questions. This is a matter of national security.' They did not deny the skies were being sprayed but he said, we don't have to answer questions on this. They would not answer them. So your Parliaments, your governments are technically useless. You've got lots of prostitutes in there and psychopathic novices who are just climbing the ladder. They smell which way the wind is going and go along with it because they want little brownie points on their resumes.

Rick: I see. Then the third one I wanted to say was before the Republican National Convention, the police were going in to homes and terrorizing people, including little children, and so the anarchists went out and slashed cop car tires and busted in windows. Part of me was like YEA. Part of me was so, I was so angry. If someone had scared my little child with a gun, I would want to do the same thing. Then the other part of me is like, this is what they're making us... they're trying to provoke the people.

Alan: It's a dialectic. It's the dialectic simply put in action. They put out the condition and the response and you're seeing it happen. They want conflict amongst the public. They want us all fighting each other at the bottom, so they can say 'look, the public at the bottom are really crazy. We have to have more enforcement' and so on and so on. So we can't fall in to THAT trap. In fact, the communist technique was to allow things to get so bad, even stop charities from handing food out to the starving, to try and exacerbate the tensions for revolution. This is the standard technique as well. Don't fall into the standard responses. The best way to do it with these people is to SHAME THEM. You've got to SHAME those little henchmen. That's all they are is low-end henchmen. Shame them as to what they're doing. That's what you have to do.

Rick: Yeah. It makes sense. Well thank you very much Alan.

Alan: Thanks for calling.

Rick: You have a good weekend.

Alan: You too. We've got Joel in California. Are you there Joel?

Joel: Alan, how's it going?

Alan: I'm surviving here.

Joel: That's great. I tell ya, I wish you were back on the 2 hour schedule because man, it just seems like this 1 hour goes by so fast.

Alan: It does.

Joel: I have a [question] a little bit off topic from the chemtrails. I was wondering if your research ever brought you across the... I guess they've been proven to be fake anthropologists, essentially. Carlos Castaneda and Tobias Schneebaum, to this day, they still claim these books are non-fiction and I was wondering if you've ever come across them and if so, what part to they play in the whole mind games that are going on in culture?

Alan: Well, the mind game in culture that really started big time in the 50s in fact, with the major sci-fi that was getting released. It was followed up quickly by the new age movement. Especially when the Beatles broke out. That's really what kicked it off. The whole idea - and this is from Freemasonry itself, by the way - they call it 'possibility thinking'. The guys who introduced 'possibility thinking' were all high masons. It was to get you in to NOT seeing the world the way that you saw it, but looking at all the possible things you could do to change or get for yourself or whatever; power, in other words. Out of that came a plethora of books to do with this, from new age authors that just suddenly appeared there, which could take you on almost LSD trips from cover to cover. That again, made everything that was fantastic seem possible. If you really get caught up in it, you would lose your ability to really rationalize for yourself. That was part of it. It was also to create an illusion that YOU technically can gain power by techniques and through certain masters which, of course, would come forward to the public. Which they did, through different organizations over the years. The end product being, you can become a God. We saw that with Shirley McLain and others where she declared she was God and the big documentary that was done. So, it's all part of a DISSOCIATION process. You make people dissociated from a reality and caught up in a fantasy world, a fantastic world where anything can be possible through MAGIC basically. Now, if you look at what's being done to the public, they're using HAARP sciences here. They're not using human or other types of magic as far as we can see. So it's the dissociative process they want from using pure logic. It also was meant to destroy the vestiges of Christianity that told you not to dabble in magic, you see. They gave you a lot of different authors that came out of the woodwork - who were all Masons - and they were being coached. Many of them were not single people but there were TEAMS of specialists. You can find the same teams of specialists going back to the days of HG Wells. It wasn't just one author who wrote all that stuff. He had a team in a building working for him.

Joel: I see. Okay. The reason I asked this question is actually because... Not to be super duper personal, but when I was about 14, I was a victim of what would be called the grooming process. Part of this grooming process was the guy was like here, read this Carlos Castaneda book. You know. I'm 14 years old and I'm reading this and as you had outlined there, that process that you described did in fact happen to me. I was under the impression, when I was 14, that this was a non-fiction book based on the fact that right on the spine, to this day, these books say non-fiction. Then as time went on, it was almost like the dose was upped, so to speak, where I was then introduced to the Tobia Schneebaum books which got in to all kinds of stuff. They end up at actual cannibalism. So, I'm kind of wondering... I guess, I'm sort of wondering what OP was I essentially, I guess you could say, victimized by? Have you heard of this exact process before?

Alan: Yes. There's no doubt, even within the O.T.O. and Crowley promoted this. He actually said it in The Book of the Law, that the greatest sacrifice you can give is your own first-born child. His own first-born child did die a year, pretty well a year from birth. Crowley had moved off to a little Italian village where you could buy any cop off and so on. So he had no problem getting away with it.

These characters were trying to encourage all this kind of stuff. See, once you break reality and break the norms and you bring people into what's called magical thinking, you can guide their thought processes into the most bizarre routes, but it's always the ones that you pick for them. It's always written in such a fantastic way, it's almost subliminal. It picks stuff from the deep unconscious and the medulla oblongata area of the brain where everything resides and it pulls it to the fore. So really, this sleepwalking state takes over you and into your conscious life and you're hypnotic. You're going through a hypnotic state. It could last for years.

Joel: Wow. Okay. Now, would you have any idea why this...

Alan: Hold on and we'll do this after the break.

Hi folks. This is Alan Watt and this is Cutting Through The Matrix. We're talking to Joel from California about his own experiences in this whole new age format when he followed the Carlos Castaneda and others along the mystical journey. The magical mystery tour, as they called it, in higher levels. So do you want to continue Joel?

Joel: I guess the part that I'm look back trying to understand and come to grips with... Well, it seems obvious that the person did it to me in a very systematic nature. Like it was almost a recipe on...

Alan: There is a recipe. You're right on.

Joel: So I'm trying to figure out was this just one guy's way of getting his jollies or was it something that was even more sinister. Where would someone learn the mechanics of this? I would think a lot... I know a lot of people of psychopathic personalities just get off on hurting kids but I'm just wondering if there is something more to it.

Alan: I know the governments and agencies... There are departments, for instance, in Britain of MI-5 that literally, LITERALLY have a place in the Cotswolds where they train people to go out in to the world to create mystery and confusion. These are agents. Crowley was one of them. That's what they do. They're assigned different areas, different places. Sometimes they come out initially with fairly big money. They get big halls. They get followers. Other ones do it more quietly and will teach one on one. So you don't know which part of which experiment you've been part of really.

Joel: Okay. But to you it does sound like it was actually part of an experiment more than just one person doing their thing.

Alan: Very probably.

Joel: Okay. I guess just wrapping up, you'd mentioned Crowley and of course, I'm quite familiar with that. One of the things I don't hear people talking about too much was his first book. His Diary of a Drug Scene. I was wondering what you made of... There was a part in there where it almost seemed, well, he basically explains the entire drug game. I guess the book was written in what, 1919 or something like that. He basically spells it all out. I was just wondering, what was that all about? I mean, is that them just putting it in your face or

Alan: They're putting it in your face but it's also to intrigue you. Because even when they expose something, it can be so fascinating, you might be tempted to try it. They wanted to - Huxley did The Doors of Perception - they wanted to get the public in to drugs. Some of the present day leaders put out there still do. They want you to go to South America and drink all these elixirs and have your various experiences. It's the same format because maybe 1 out of every 3 people who do that will actually have an alteration - a physical, permanent one too - of the brain. They will have loss of affect, etc. These are all parts of experiments as well. Remember too, that Crowley was part of the whole thing. He told you to go to South America, as well, and try the drugs down there and have your Godly experiences. They've all done the same things down through the ages and the present ones are still doing it, in fact.

Joel: I see.

Alan: The music's coming in and I got to go, I'm afraid.

Joel: Well, thank you Alan. I really appreciate it.

Okay. So from Hamish and myself, from a very heavily sprayed Ontario, Canada, it's good night and may your God or your Gods GO with you.
